Pre-Closing Process

Let's begin by discussing the process of selecting a Closing Agent, which is required for both a home purchase and a refinance.

? Who are Closing Agents and what else may they be referred to as?

? Which party or parties can select the Closing Agent?

A Closing Agent's main function is to ensure the proper transfer of the legal title and assist with things such as coordinating the document signing, verify all parties involved have performed their required responsibilities, oversee the closing process, and ensure everything in the closing process has happened in the right order and time.

Before an order for title can be placed, Closing Agents help borrowers decide how they will hold title and which type of title insurance coverage to purchase.

Holding Title refers to the ownership rights to a property and depends on the borrower's situation.

? What are five common ways Title can be held?

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____
4. _____
5. _____

Note: This is not legal advice; you should consult an attorney to review specific details and laws around these options.

After determining how title will be held, a decision on which type of Title Insurance to purchase must be made. Title Insurance is issued after closing and protects borrowers and mortgage lenders against defects or problems with a Title.

- ? What are the two types of Title Insurance that can be purchased? Note which one is required or optional.
1. _____
 2. _____

At the time an order for Title is placed, the Title company will complete a Title Search.

- ? Describe what a Title Search is:
- _____
- _____

- ? What is a Lien? Provide an example of a Lien:
- _____
- _____

The goal of a Title Search is for a title company to produce a Clear Title, which is a title without liens and poses no question to legal ownership and is marketable to future sellers. This is required for any real estate transaction to go through properly. After Title is cleared a Certificate of Title and a Title Insurance Commitment is issued.

Closing Process

The Closing can occur following a Clear Title and this is when ownership is officially transferred from the seller to the homebuyer, or for a refinance when the funds are disbursed.

To prepare for Closing, Closing Agents assign a Signing Agent to meet with the borrower on Closing day.

? What is a Signing Agent and what do they ensure happens at the closing?

Before a Closing date can be finalized, all loan conditions and title requirements must be cleared. The lender finalizes all the figures for closing with the help of the Closing Agent. Then, prior to Closing the lender provides these figures via a Closing Disclosure Form to all parties involved for a final review.

? How many days in advance must the Closing Disclosure Form be received for final review?

Borrowers should discuss with the Closing Agent the amount of money needed for Closing and what forms of payment are acceptable. Closing is not always a smooth process and sometimes there are delays. The Closing Agent will also provide instructions on acceptable IDs and who will need to be present at the Closing.

? What is the term used to describe a borrower's right to cancel a refinance transaction?

After closing on a refinance borrowers have until midnight of the third business day after the transaction to cancel the mortgage contract. It's important to note that borrowers who purchase a home with a mortgage do not have this right.

The title company will be the ones to disburse or collect all the funds, if applicable.

Notes:

Post-Closing Process

Following Closing, a final 'post-closing' review of all documentation is performed by the lender to validate the loan was executed properly. If something was not executed correctly or is missing, the title company will work to correct the issue or reach out to obtain the missing information. It's very important to provide any missing information, as this will cause delays in the recording.

If no issues are uncovered in the review the lender gives final approval. Then, after funding and disbursement are complete the Recording must take place.

? What is the Recording?

? What is the Recorder of Deeds?

Recording helps protect an owner from competing claims to a property by providing a traceable Chain of Title, or evidence that the property has passed from one owner to the next.

? What is the highest evidence of ownership to a property?

The last step of obtaining a title is the actual issuance of the final Title Insurance policy.

After a title company confirms that all the appropriate steps were taken to close the loan, such as re-validating ownership through any filed deeds, that the payoffs were made to the appropriate parties, and that all buyer stipulations were met, the Title Insurance policy is issued and a copies are sent to the borrower and the lender.
